

STUDIO LEGALE ASSOCIATO QUINTAVALLE RIVA ALBANO

20122 MILAN - VIA C. G. MERLO 1

“Today is just another day, like every day that will follow, but what you do in all those days to come depends on what you do today. That’s how it was so many times.”

Ernest Hemingway

From its inception, Studio Associato Quintavalle Riva Albano has emphasized those aspects of the legal profession that have been its pillars since the very beginning and which today are unfortunately not always considered the guidelines and principles followed by those who practice the most liberal of the arts: the law.

We refer to the duties of probity, dignity and decorum, loyalty and correctness, faithfulness, diligence and competence, truth and reserve. It may verge on demagoguery but we are convinced that if, in the exercise of his profession, the professional neglects to hold these values first and foremost, he falls short of satisfying the lawyer’s social duty, as specified by the c. d. complementary code, which explains the lawyer’s constitutional function in the broadest sense as follows:

“The lawyer must exercise his activities in the observance of the duties that his office owes to society for the protection of human rights before the state and all other powers.”

The lawyer who does not address his practice to social ends may be a professional in the art of jurisprudence, but he is no lawyer.

The Studio offers consulting and professional assistance in various areas of civil law, specifically:
